

Lascaux – June 15th, 2009
François Collart Dutilleul

Welcome to the Lascaux research program. This website is intended for those interested in the fundamental question of feeding humanity.

As everyone knows, this issue raises many difficulties both in rich countries than in poorer countries. The ways of overcoming them are usually approached from an economic perspective and from an ethical standpoint. The Lascaux program does not aim to put this into question. It wants to bring the strength, effectiveness and legitimacy of LAW to support all efforts to feed humanity though.

However, this does not mean that this program is only addressed to lawyers. This program is also open to researchers, NGOs and all the citizens around the world.

With you all, that new scientific and human adventure is just beginning...
